14th Hike Haliburton Festival largest yet

by ANGELICA INGRAM
Times Staff

The annual Hike Haliburton Festival that took place county-wide this past weekend was the largest one yet.

Since its inception the festival, which incorporates hikes, concerts, food events and more, has grown every year and this year was no exception.

Held from Sept. 22 to 25, Hike Haliburton, which is an initiative of Haliburton County, was tremendously successful, with many hikes surpassing their limit, said project manager Barrie Martin.

Although it's early to report final numbers, Martin said he suspects attendance to be approaching 2,000 people, and even more once you factor in every event. The number doesn't reflect how many attended the festival, as many individuals participate in multiple aspects of the festival.

"The numbers are certainly exceeding expectations," he said.

Approximately 40 per cent of participants tend to be local residents, based on previous years, said Martin.

"Forty plus tend to be cottagers," he said. "Hike Haliburton's giving them another reason to come up for another weekend."

Martin said there are many examples of hikes that had 25 people pre-registered and 50 people showed up.

Fall Tour special inside Declining scores across the board

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

The latest round of results from the province's Education Quality and Accountability Office show declining academic performance within the Trillium Lakelands District School Board, including at the schools of Haliburton County.

The results show combined achievement grouped by year, the latest round showing results for 2014-16, compared to the previous round of 2013-15.

It should be noted EQAO testing was not performed in 2015 due to job action that was taking place with teachers' unions at the time.

The latest round of results includes testing that was done in the spring.

Scores across the school board in reading, writing and mathematics are generally down.

For Grade 3 students, 69 per cent were at or above the provincial average in reading, versus 71 per cent from the 2013-15 round of results.

When it comes to writing, 69 per cent were at or above the average versus 76 per cent last time and in mathematics, 63 per cent were at or above the average, down from 68 per cent.

That trend continued at Minden's Archie Stouffer Elementary School, where 86 per cent of Grade 3 students were at or above the provincial average in reading for the 2014-16

Hikers strap on their dancing shoes for annual Blister Ball

The Minden Hills Community Centre was rocking with the entertaining vocals and skillful musical stylings of the "all-star" band Betty and the Bobs, whose Katherine Wheatley, far right, came and joined the dancers on Saturday night, Sept. 24 at the Blister Ball. There were more than 200 people at the annual Hike Haliburton dance event. The four-day hiking festival, which drew more than 1,000 people included more than 80 hikes and assorted events throughout Haliburton County.

A total of 90 people attended two hikes held at Miner's Bay Lodge on the weekend, for example.

"There's a strong indication that our numbers will be up significantly over last year," said Martin.

Another indicator was attendance at Haliburton's Biggest Picnic Ever, which the project manager estimates was somewhere around 500 people, from start to finish.

Although Martin doesn't have all the details to summarize the event yet, he has been hearing nothing but positive feedback from individuals who participated.

"From a whole bunch of different places people are raving about the quality of the experience and the quality of the signage and the organization," he said. "I haven't heard much negativity about the event at all, which is really gratifying."

Martin says for the past four years the festival has seen a 20 per cent increase in participation each year compared to the last. He's not exactly sure what led to the large turnout this year but points to factors such as good weather, marketing and word of mouth.

"I think it's a combination of building awareness, because

Scott reintroduces human trafficking bill

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock MPP Laurie Scott has reintroduced her private member's bill taking aim at human trafficking following the sudden prorogation of the Ontario legislature earlier this month.

On Sept. 8, Premier Kathleen Wynne announced the legislature would prorogue before resuming for the fall, giving her Liberal government the opportunity to reset its political agenda through a Throne Speech.

The prorogation of a legislature also kills any bills that are making their way through the legislative process.

Scott's bill, which she calls the Saving the Girl Next Door Act, received second reading in Queen's Park in February. For the bill to become law, it would've had to be called by the government, then taken to committee for review, then return to the legislature for a third reading.

In late 2014, Scott, who is the PC party's critic for women's issues, spearheaded the creation of an all-party standing committee on sexual violence and harassment, on which she served as vice-chairwoman.

An alarming finding in the committee's final report, which was released last year, was the frequency of human trafficking – typically of young girls and women for sexual purposes – occurring in Ontario.

The bill is divided into three main sections.

The first part proclaims there should be a day of awareness for human trafficking as there seems to little public understanding as to the severity of the problem.

The second suggests expanding current legislation and proposes that protection orders be able to be taken out directly against traffickers. Similar to a restraining order, a protection order would require a perpetrator stay away from a victim for a minimum of three years or face a penalty of $50,000, two years in jail, or both.

— MPP LAURIE SCOTT

The second section of the bill also calls for a new tort to be created, allowing victims to go after traffickers for damages.

The third part of the bill requests that the current definition of "sexual offence" be expanded.

"It's clear this government is not serious about human sex trafficking legislation when they continue to drive the agenda for their own gain," Scott said in the legislature on Sept. 21, criticizing the government for failing to pass legislation following the standing committee's report.

"Frontline service providers and workers are exasperated that there is still nothing advancing the law to support them in fighting this horrific crime."

On cliff jumping

THE END OF SUMMER was tinged with tragedy in Algonquin Highlands when a 29-year-old man lost his life in a cliff-jumping incident on Raven Lake during the Labour Day weekend.

The man died in what police called a "freak accident"—that is, there was no alcohol or drugs involved.

In the media release, the OPP said they "would like to remind everyone to make safety the No. 1 priority in all your activities whether at work or at play."

"I believe this was an opportunity for the OPP to discourage cliff diving or jumping, rather than seemingly dismiss it as something that's not likely to reoccur," one reader commented on social media.

And perhaps she has a point.

Cliff jumping is an inherently risky activity. It is inherently dangerous. That's part of what makes it exhilarating.

It doesn't matter how familiar one is with the area or the waterbody, things can go wrong. Under the water's surface, there could be logs or rocks where there weren't logs or rocks before. Even if the space below the water's surface has been checked (which it obviously should be), other injury-inducing and potentially life-threatening situations can occur.

Hitting the water itself at the wrong angle. Slipping and hitting one's head. Etc.

But cliff jumping is a cottaging tradition for many, a summery rite of passage that somehow embodies the carefree spirit of being on holidays.

And it's not just jumping from cliffs.

During a visit to Dorset this summer, I watched two girls jumping from the bridge on its main street into the channel below. Anyone who's been to Dorset in the summertime knows this channel, which opens into the Lake of Bays, is extremely busy. The girls would wait for boats below to pass before making their well-timed plunges.

Full disclosure: I am a former cliff jumper. When I was a high school student in Lindsay, one way we'd celebrate the end of the school year was to drive to Fenelon Falls and fling ourselves off the cliffs there.

I have jumped off cliffs in the Haliburton Highlands on numerous occasions.

So, clearly, I'm in no position to write that no one should go cliff jumping at any time.

However, the Raven Lake incident is a stark reminder of the inherent risks of the activity.

Moose hunting advice

MOOSE SEASON is just about upon us. Unless you happen to be a moose or moose sympathizer, this is a wonderful time of year. Hunters and (in some areas) their hounds will spend days in the woods hoping that they will be the first to place the tag in their pocket on one of the most sought after trophies in all of hunting – the camp couch.

For the casual hunter, there is no greater achievement.

Well, maybe one – that is avoiding being in the immediate area of the moose someone else just shot. Needless to say, this takes a whole lot of skill and some planning. After all, it's not easy avoiding detection when you are clad from head to toe in hunter orange.

The odds are good, in fact, that someone will see and yell at you to come down into the swamp to help. Feigning being hard of hearing helps mitigate this.

You just don't claim this at the time, however. No sir, you have to start as you would like to end, by letting people know this right from the beginning.

The standard advice is to walk into hunt camp and immediately start to utter phrases such as "Pardon me," or "What did you say?" I actually prefer to do this year round. Either way, it will set the stage for when someone one valley over yells, "Come and help me drag out this moose!"

If you've done things right, you will yell back, "Yes, I'm going to camp for a snooze." This, as you can see, not only gives you a head start on getting to the camp couch but it also prepares you for later when someone says, "Hey! It's your turn to do the dishes!" To which you can return a smile, give them a thumbs up and say, while heading out the door with fishing rod in hand, "Sure! I'll be glad to catch us some fishes!"

Of course, this ploy will only work until some SOB discovers that they can use a birch bark moose call as a megaphone. That's why you need a back up plan – the bad back.

The bad back is a classic excuse, probably as old as moose hunting itself. Therefore, modern moose hunters need to up their game to fool fellow hunters.

I prefer a well-crafted doctor's note that features such phrases as "incontinence-inducing back spasms" and "violent, psychotic episodes."

If the camp is filled with too many skeptics, it's also wise to take in a bottle of suppositories and nonchalantly mention that "My doctor said if my back pain gets bad, I'll need one of you to administer these to me."

You won't lift a finger for the rest of the week.

Arguably, the most important moose hunting skill is knowing what to say when you actually miss one standing broadside at 25 yards. I prefer the sentence, "It was him," as I point in the direction of the nearest hunter.

Yet, there will be times when that hunter is the one trying to ascertain why you missed. In which case, I'll point in the opposite direction and repeat the phrase. If that hunter is there too, try another cardinal direction until you get it right.

Look, no one said moose hunting was easy. It takes hard work and dedication to earn everyone's respect. And all it takes is one well-placed bullet in an impenetrable swamp to lose it.

IN OTHER WORDS

Columns and Letters to the Editor

The good thing about Trump

THE RISE OF TRUMPISM with all its anger, fear, wild exaggerations and other hateful negatives is a good thing.

Yes, a good thing - in one respect.

Before I get to that, Canadians need to understand that Trumpism is not a U.S.-only phenomenon. It has manifested itself in the U.K. Independence Party and the Brexit vote; The National Front in France, the Golden Dawn in Greece, and hyper-nationalistic groups in some other countries.

These political forces thrive by gorging themselves on peoples' fears. People fear changes they see occurring every day.

Economic uncertainty is prominent in their fears. Globalization continues to produce economic inequality that is upsetting individual lives, and political structures.

Middle classes are disappearing, leaving an ever-widening gap between the rich and the poor. Ditto the gap between big cities and smaller cities and towns where boarded windows are replacing factories and other businesses.

Terrorism's constant presence is deepening fear of strangers and certain groups of people. Combined with that are swelling streams of refugees increasing fears of both economic insecurity and terrorism. Strangers viewed by people who fear that if they are not here to drain a shrinking pool of jobs, they are here to kill them.

In all this is the realization that the pillars of our democratic society are doing little to help. Growing numbers of people distrust the justice system, the news media, their religious institutions, and yes, governments.

Governments trowel serious problems with fresh plaster, but the cracks keep returning. Declining job prospects, the growing difficulties of home ownership, infrastructure rot, drug addiction are just a few of the challenges overwhelming our politicians.

Ontario is a classic study. It has been decades since the province has elected a government, of any political stripe, that has done anything more than smooth over, instead of fixing problems.

Sadly, we have a leadership vacuum. The people we need to lead, and the people most qualified to lead, do not want to be drawn into the current political miasma.

So why did I say that the rise of Trumpism is a good thing, in one respect?

In the beginning, Trumpism in the U.S. was dismissed as clownish vulgarism. It was laughable. Now it is being taken seriously and increasingly is becoming the topic of thoughtful writing. The writing has turned from the man, to the factors that have brought Trumpism. And, that's a good thing.

The New Republic, The Wall Street Journal and others have done impressive pieces on social collapse and other factors contributing to Trump's rise.

A book titled Hillbilly Elegy: A Memoir of a Family and Culture in Crisis by J.D. Vance also illustrates what has happened to the social structure of the United States. These works and others are helping Americans to understand the sicknesses in their democracy and help them to find the medicines and healers needed for cures.

This is not happening in Canada, although the same sicknesses exist here. If you don't believe that, consider these random snippets: Factory workers who have been working 10 years as temps without any benefits, the nightly gunfire in Toronto, the 35,000 Canadians who are homeless every night, the nearly 500 people in British Columbia have died from drug overdoses this year, an increase of 60-plus per cent over last year.

Canadians are not getting much depth reporting about their big issue problems. The Canadian news industry is in ruins, falling apart because of corporate concentration, and dull-witted approaches to the digital revolution.

The industry plays defence against digital, instead of offence to learn from it, adapt to it and get ahead of it. Industry geniuses keep looking for profitable new ways to sell their news instead of how best to serve readers with quality content they are willing to pay for.

But why Canadians are poorly served with quality information about what is behind Trumpism, and what needs to be done to change that, is a story for another day.

Trump hopefully will fade from sight after the Nov. 8 presidential election. He'll be gone but Trumpism, or whatever other names are attached to ultra-nationalistic movements, will be with us for years to come.

letters to the editor

On the pool, again

To the Editor,

The taxpayer base already pays for facilities that a small portion of the population use, i.e., the arena. And is destined to pay more. Apparently, from the arena survey, 50 per cent of respondents never use the arena, but all options are for variations on the same. Fifty per cent of the respondents were most interested in a pool, but it wasn't included in any of the options.

How is that good planning?

Chad editorializes that an aquatic centre would cost millions but a pool wasn't included in the costed options. How is that good reporting?

Why does the municipality ask for input (re a pool) if they've already excluded it from their consideration. How is that respectful?

Health committee looking for members

The Central East Local Health Integration Network (Central East LHIN) is seeking community members to participate in the new Patient and Family Advisory Committee (PFAC).

Patients and their family/caregivers who live within the Central East LHIN's geographic region are encouraged to complete and submit an Expression of Interest for consideration as a member of the Central East LHIN Patient and Family Advisory Committee.

Since its inception, the Central East LHIN has recognized the value of listening to the voices of patients and their family/caregivers. Taking action on the lived experience of patients and their family/caregivers has resulted in the establishment of new programs, improvements to existing services and, when warranted, the re-design or re-assignment of accountability for services.

The PFAC will serve as a forum for dialogue among community members as they advise the Central East LHIN on issues and perspectives related to health system goals and objectives.

An effective patient and family advisory committee will reflect the diversity of the people and the communities within the Central East LHIN. A diverse committee will ensure that discussions will reflect and respond to a broad range of lived experiences.

The development of the PFAC will take into consideration the key proposals that have been outlined in the Patients First: Action Plan for Health Care.

The PFAC is intended to establish relationships that will promote engagement and communication between patients, their friends and families and the LHIN, leading to improved patient and health system outcomes.

The draft terms of reference and expression of interest can be found on the Central East LHIN's website: www.centrallestlhin.on.ca.

In a media release, the chairwoman of the Trillium Lakelands District School Board said the board is disappointed in the showing.

“While we are disappointed in the recent results, we are confident that our senior administrators, our principals, and our school staff will review and plan the best way forward from here,” said Louise Clodd.

“Although these are not the results we expected, we are confident we can turn things around,” said Andrea Gillespie, the board’s superintendent of learning. “As a system we know how to monitor and improve student achievement. Our staff at the school and the system level will continue to do everything possible to provide the best opportunities for all our students to succeed and improve.”

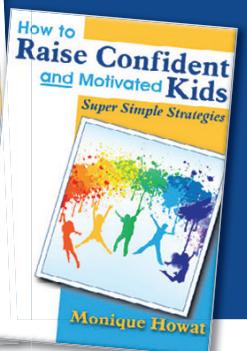

According to a release from the board, “school and system leaders are reviewing all of the data to determine next steps, which will include strengthening the collaboration with and between teaching staff, consultants and administrators.

“The school board is committed to identifying areas of greatest need, which will become the content for continued professional learning. Multi-department teams will continue to work together with schools to offer job-embedded learning including supports for students with special needs.”

There are 47 schools in the Trillium Lakelands District School Board.

HHHS committee seeking members

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

The following are brief reports of items discussed during a Sept. 22 meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services board.

The HHHS community advisory committee has three vacancies, which the committee is looking to fill. The advisory committee is a relatively new one, created last year, and, as its name implies, designed to draw feedback and recommendations from residents of Haliburton County. It recently reduced the frequency of its meetings from 10 a year to six.

Engaging staff

HHHS continues its efforts toward heightened staff appreciation and engagement, with CEO Carolyn Plummer telling board members that new working groups aimed at staff engagement have been meeting. They include a healthy work environment working group and communications working group, which Plummer said is looking at how to improve internal communications.

Filling positions

Plummer told board members that three managerial positions within HHHS have now been filled, with Highland Wood, Hyland Crest and Community Support Services all with permanent directors. HHHS continues its search for a chief nursing executive. "Hopefully we will have somebody identified next month," Plummer said. There has been significant staff turnover at HHHS within recent years, including a number of senior-level positions. The organization's former CEO was terminated by the board late last year.

Garden party

A garden party will be held at the Community Support Services building at the Haliburton HHHS site on Sept. 30 from 1 to 3 p.m. The event will commemorate the contributions of Community Care Haliburton over the years and celebrate the continuing contributions of Community Support Services. Under the province's Local Health Integration Network integration process, Community Care Haliburton, as well as the hospice program formerly operated by SIRCH and day programming offered by the Victorian Order of Nurses, have been folded into HHHS operations.

Bag Ladies need your toiletries

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

The Bag Ladies are back and they want your soap, toothpaste, toothbrushes, deodorant, combs, brushes, creams, shampoo, lotions and potions, kleenex, sanitary products, shaving cream, nail care stuff, gum and so on.

Well, not yours, specifically.

"Anything that you can find in your purse or travel toiletry bag," says organizer Diane Dawson.

The Bag Ladies were formed last Christmas, Dawson and her friends wondering what they could do to help augment the activities of the Minden Food Bank.

Someone had mentioned more toiletries could be useful. Someone mentioned she had a bunch of bags she never used.

So the women gathered toiletry items, packing them into purses and handbags and delivered them to local women's shelters and food banks.

They delivered more than 100 of them in the past year and are at it again.

The Bag Ladies will be packing bags on Wednesday, Oct. 12 starting at 10 a.m. at Dawson's Wintergreen Maple Syrup and Pancake Barn in Gelert.

However, the women are putting out a call for items now. Anyone with toiletries or handbags they would like to donate can drop them off at Wintergreen at any time or call Dawson at 705-286-3202.

The MINDEN CHURCH MOUSE heard that ...

Ravi Zacharius speaking on the fourth Sunday of the Anniversary Month for the infamous church in North Carolina that turned down a young Billy Graham for a call as their pastor was asked by a young new attender "When is all the reflecting on the past going to end." Ravi responded "Son the only thing worse than nostalgia is amnesia."

The MINDEN CHURCH MOUSE also heard Pastor David say that ...

Minden Bible Church has been celebrating 60 years!

We began the summer on the July 1 weekend with a family barbecue and outdoor tent. We ended the summer on Labour Day weekend with a beef barbecue and outdoor tent and we climaxed the Civic Holiday Weekend with an Anniversary Service and Special Guests reflecting on past and current blessings. We have enjoyed a lot of great music and gifted musicians at our summer services.

A church life of 60 years is similar to one's personal life – with many good years and some difficult years. Fortunately, MBC is enjoying good years and growing in numbers.

Our Mission is taken from the interchange between the legal expert and Jesus, where Jesus is asked "What is the greatest commandment?" His answer is to love God and to love others. We call it "Loving God....Loving One Another....Loving the Community."

The Bible tells the strange stories of men and women who believe there is another world; that the garden we long for really does exist; that the enemies, suffering and death, will not be allowed to have the last word; that we can be forgiven; that we can be a friend of God and that we shall see another world called Heaven. This belief keeps them – and us – going. It's called "Good News" and its the core of our message.

This summer MBC enjoyed giving to the community with free water and refreshments at Canada Day and Friday nights at the Music at the Gull downtown. We were full most Sundays adding chairs to the back door others with great crowds of extended summer family present. God opened lives for us to minister and conquer strong holds. Folks travelled with us on our spiritual journey!

This was our best summer yet. Praise the Lord!

Lady Hawks welcome Smith back

by DARREN LUM
Times Staff

When it comes to the Red Hawks field hockey team their trip to the Central Ontario Secondary School Athletics final has been a perennial certainty.

This year won't be any different, promises coach Steve Smith, who insisted the team will win that final and advance to the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations championships.

"The expectation is always the same. We qualify. We go," he said.

Coming back after a two-year hiatus, he really loves to see the energy and the potential of the new team. Smith smiled and spoke animatedly about the team he is co-coaching with Jessica Lloyd.

"The girls are great. They're getting better. They're not where they need to be, but they're getting there," he said, loudly, letting the players hear what he was saying.

With three rookies, Smith repeated his mantra, a well-known saying to lighten the mood for the team.

"There's no crying in field hockey. If you're going to ... go to the end of the field. Have your boo hoo and then come back before you infect the team," he said.

With only 18 players, the team has concentrated its team and will be only fielding a varsity A team in the Kawartha High School Field Hockey League, dropping the Varsity B team that played developmental teams.

This won't affect how the team is coached, Smith said, but could have implications on future teams.

Although he believes the summer field hockey offering helps with promotion, he wants the current players to encourage other girls to join.

Lloyd and Smith both believe the popularity of rugby has pulled a few players, who would have played field hockey. He adds the lower enrolment also factored. The school is below 500 students.

Co-coach Lloyd welcomes Smith's return to the program and how it helps to divide the coaching duties.

"He's the drill master. I let him run that show," she said, laughing about how she can concentrate more on the paperwork. She believes while he works with the team on drills she can take a step back and see the big picture.

"I can watch and then give the girls feedback when needed to tweak things. It works well that well," she said.

Before the four game league regular season, which starts against Crestwood on Sept. 29, the team will play in two tournaments, one in Ottawa this past weekend and another in Peterborough this week. These tournaments will be beneficial to the coaches and the development of the players. It also provides coaches an opportunity to gauge the team's competitiveness, fitness and skills now that the team lost nine players from last year's varsity A team.

Smith said one difference from when he was coaching was the long corners have been moved from the far corners to the 25-yard line, as a result of a rule change. He likes it for the offence by how it allows the play to be spread across the field instead of constricted in the corner.

Another difference is the new turf fields used for games. To prepare, Smith and Lloyd will have their team practice in the gym the day before the game at Sir Sandford Fleming College fields.

As far as how this team will play, Lloyd isn't sure how to characterize this group's play yet except that they have "meshed" well both on and off the field.

She acknowledged this team is quieter than other years, but doesn't take away how they execute on the field.

"We lost our vocal players," she said, laughing. "I would definitely say this is a quieter bunch."

Besides the three rookies, the rest of the team is battle tested, whether with the Varsity A squad or the Varsity B squad, who won the Kawartha Championship – the highest level for Varsity B.

She pointed out the B team was led by leading scorer Claire Karaguesian and on defence by back fielders Emily Klose with Alisha Villamere.

The seven returning A players are Kenndal Marsden, Emma Scheffee, Rebecca Hamilton, Ali Paul, Kendra Anderson, Jamie Little and Abby Gordon.

Hawks alumnus Grace Diezel has returned to help coach up to three times a week, particularly with the newest players.

The goaltending duties will be shared this season by Sonya Flatman, who was the varsity B netminder and then asked to play for the A team in OFSAA when regular goalie Sydney Cameron was not able to play, and Grade 12 student Gillian King. King, who is new to the school, has previous goaltending experience.

"They all have great experience. It will come down to seeing them in action," Lloyd said.

The team's first home game is on Oct. 4 at 2:30 p.m. against Holy Cross. All games are subject to change.

Sr Hawks lose season opener

by DARREN LUM

Times Staff

The combination of a short bench, a few bad breaks and some very costly penalties proved to be the undoing for the senior Red Hawks football team in its season opener 27-13 loss against the St. Peter's Catholic Secondary School Saints on Friday in Peterborough.

"The game was a good learning experience and we will move forward with a positive attitude to our next game," co-coach Raavo Laidla wrote in an email.

Laidla adds refereeing was inconsistent and with only 28 players the team was forced to play on both sides of the ball. He said despite this his team played well.

Scoring came from Nolan Flood on a touchdown catch from quarterback Rylan Gwyn, who also ran it in while McKay Coneybear kicked a convert.

"The boys made a valiant comeback effort but just fell a little short," he said.

Volunteer Engagement Project

SURVEY

The Township of Minden Hills has initiated a Volunteer Engagement Project to help us better understand our current volunteers, what we could improve and how to plan for the future. The Township utilizes the skills and experience of hundreds of volunteers each year to help us promote our community through fundraising, special events, recreation programs and community initiatives. Without volunteers, these activities would not be possible.

We also know that availability of new volunteers is challenging and supply of volunteers has not met demand. Our community continues to be more and more active each year.

Here is a personal invitation to all volunteers who support Township community events to give us your input. We invite you to take part in our online survey. It should take about 15 minutes to complete. Your ideas will help us develop recommendations to build a better engaged and growing volunteer team for the whole community.

Visit the link provided here to take the online, confidential survey. We encourage you to complete it before Wednesday October 12, 2016, as it will close that day. Results of this survey will be shared with the community on the Township web site.

Avoiding the cat psychiatrist

AROUND THE TOWN

Patti Fleury

705-488-2938 brucefleury1@hotmail.com

Here at the old farmhouse the younger cat Jake has completely changed. After obviously missing and looking in vain for his two former companions Clarence and Taffy it is as if he finally realized as we have that they are not coming back. He began staying out overnight arriving damp and hungry in the morning. Last Friday however he was clearly unwell and moved his "principal residence" from the top of the woodstove in the dining room to the bathtub with occasional forays into the shower stall or sleeping in the towel basket. By Monday afternoon a trip to the vets was clearly in order. By the time we arrived at the clinic Jake had managed to get out of the carrier and be seated on top of it. At the front desk we were met by a sleek, jet black cat Frankie (aka the Walmart Greeter) and after a series of tests it appeared that Jake had ingested a substance which had affected him physically. However this still did not explain his behavioural change and preference for the bathroom fixtures. After paying our bill for what was truly excellent care and caring Bruce and I agreed that as this is basically a shower household we will at least temporarily instead of "tough love" adjust and accommodate. Better than the cost of therapy with a cat psychiatrist.

The free, self-guided Victoria County/Kawartha Lakes Studio Tour continues next weekend Oct. 1 and 2. Last Sunday afternoon under beautiful sunny skies the trip into Brenda Mulholland's Studio (705-488-1574) at 421 Somerville 9th Concession, Burnt River south of Kinmount west off County Road 121 was a most pleasant fall experience. The colours are becoming more plentiful and vibrant with rich reds appearing while our neighbour's pond is now home to a large number of Canada geese gathering to fly south. I am so reluctant to hear them honking overhead going in the wrong direction.

Monday evening at their first meeting since the summer recess the 1st Kinmount Guiding Unit, which also includes Sparks and Brownies, were busy in the Kinmount Community Centre from 6:30 to 8 p.m. designing scarecrows for the Harvest Homecoming over Thanksgiving weekend. On Saturday, Oct. 8 drop by the Railway Station where our Firefighters will have an exhibit set up and be providing valuable information in support of Fire Prevention Week. Inside the Station the Special Olympics group and other vendors will welcome your visit and the Kinmount Farmer's Market will be in full swing on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. with its final session for this season. The Girl Guides will be selling their delicious cookies in the Railway Yards area as well. Be sure to drop by the Kinmount Artisans Marketplace located on the lower level of the Kinmount Community Centre with its bright orange/red roof on either Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Members of the Kinmount & Area Artisans Guild will be on hand demonstrating their talents while entering the Thanksgiving Trivia Challenge will get you a chance to win the $25 gift certificate prize. Why not bring along your list for some early Christmas shopping as well.

By now most activities here in Kinmount are back in full swing and for more details check out www.kinmount.ca. To mention but a few Tai Chi continues on Monday and Thursday mornings from 10 a.m. to noon and Yoga on Thursday evenings both at the Galway Hall. Highland Dancing sessions are on Tuesday at the Kinmount Community Centre [contact 705-455-7340] while Bingo with a $300 Must Go Jackpot is a popular Friday evening event at the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 441 Kinmount with a 6:45 p.m. start.

On a health care note foot care is available on the first Thursday monthly at the Kinmount Health Care Centre with bookings to be made by calling 705-488-2205. The Kinmount & District Lions Club have some medical/home care equipment such as wheelchairs, hospital beds, walkers, crutches, bath chairs and commodes for loan to area residents. For more information call Vic at 705-488-3053 or Dave at 705-488-2005.
